DIGITAL DEFENSE ANNOUNCES PATTY KOEBELE AS DIRECTOR OF MARKETING

San Antonio, TX – 17 January 2006 – Digital Defense, Inc., a provider of network security vulnerability and penetration testing services, today announced Patty Koebele’s appointment as Director of Marketing. In this role, Ms. Koebele’s responsibilities will include marketing communications, public relations, advertising, sales support and event coordination activities.

“Digital Defense is growing rapidly through client referrals and leveraging existing relationships in the marketplace,” said Joseph A. Cooper, CEO of Digital Defense. “As our client base continues to expand, it is critical that we have a focal point in the organization to ensure consistent messaging. Our market requires the ability to build strong, mutually beneficial associations. Ms. Koebele’s energy and experience in this area are perfectly suited to drive Digital Defense through our next phase of growth.”

Ms. Koebele commented that the strength and integrity of Digital Defense’s team attracted her attention. “While network security is a competitive field, the experience, talent and security solutions available via Digital Defense distinguish this company from its peers,” stated Ms. Koebele. “Digital Defense has clearly positioned itself for rapid growth and I look forward to working with the team to facilitate this expansion.”

Most recently, Koebele served as the Director of Operations for ThinkSpark, L.P., a company headquartered in Dallas, Texas that provided Oracle database and development expertise in addition to systems integration services.

Prior to joining ThinkSpark, Koebele was with the business development and marketing teams for SecureLogix Corporation, a telecom security and management company headquartered in San Antonio.
